

Writing Your Election Statement

Guidance Note for UK Council Seat Candidates

This note provides some points to think about when drafting your election statement. Your election statement helps you communicate your unique message to SoR members and showcases your talents, skills and experience. It is an important component of successfully running for a leadership position. Don't forget to read the UK Council Member Role Description and the SoR Strategy 2024-27 before starting.

Introduce yourself to members

- What has prepared you to be on UK Council?
- Why do you feel so passionately about holding office?

Set out how you are uniquely positioned to fulfil the role

- What skills and experience do you have that make you the best person for the role?
- Thinking about the new SoR Strategy, how will you contribute to the delivery of the strategy and the long-term success of the SoR?
- Let voters know if you are a specialist in any areas of the strategy, or if there are any aspects you take a keen interest in and why.

Describe the steps you will take to be an involved and dedicated UK Council member

- How will you demonstrate your commitment to the role and its values if elected?
- This may include willingness to serve on committees or advisory groups, and to get involved in issues outside of meetings.

Other things to think about

- Adding a brief closing summary of your key messages to voters.
- Using sub-headings to divide your address into sections and make it easier to read.
- Using simple, clear, concise language.

Instructions - important!

- The word limit is 500 words, including sub-headings. If you go beyond the limit, your address will be cut at 500 words and followed by 'address cut at word limit'.

- You may use bullet points and numbering to make separate points and these will not be counted as words.
- Links to social media, or websites, or references to other named individuals may not be included.
- The SoR reserves the right to not publish any election statement that is considered to have libellous or offensive content. This will be a decision for the Returning Officer.
